Syntax Semantics Middle Constructions Study

syntax and semantics of ergative and middle constructions - syntax and semantics of ergative and middle constructions 81 a third difference between ergatives and middles is that the latter imply an unexpressed agent (e.g., the 'seller' in (21a) although they take theme only on the surface whereas the former take theme without implying an agent argument. middle voice: a comparative study in the syntax-semantics ... - middle constructions in German become even more interesting as soon as we compare them with morphosyntactically identical constructions. We will argue that we gain deeper insight into the syntax and semantics of middle constructions if the study of middle constructions is examined in the more general context of transitive reflexive sentences. the semantics of syntax: the grounding of transitive and ... - the semantics of syntax: the grounding of transitive and intransitive constructions Wessel O. van Dam and Rutvik H.
